Why Use a Realtor?

Selling a property involves extensive marketing, negotiating, paperwork, and market knowledge. It is difficult for the average property owner to stay current of state and federal regulations regarding property transactions as they are frequently changed.

Licensed agents have the best access to serious, financially qualified buyers. They can also handle the negotiations, the paperwork, and the contracts for you. Licensed agents receive training that can make the difference between a completed transaction and one that falls apart before closing.

Real estate agents are members of the National Association of REALTORS®, and have earned the right to be called Realtors. This means that they abide by a strict code of ethics and maintain a higher level of knowledge in property transactions. They are obligated and committed to handling business with thoroughness, integrity, and confidentiality.
